

ATAC STAFF

Program Consultant:

Jane Rosenberg, M.Ed., University of Washington. Jane started a tutoring and consulting practice in 1980, after several of her students won "most improved student" awards at a local college prep school. She later served as Program Director and Learning Specialist for the University of Washington Athletic Department and for Lakeside High School. In 1996 Jane founded ATAC as a private group practice. As ATAC grew, Jane initiated ATAC's John Stanford Summer Scholarship, a non-profit program for high-potential, low-income students to provide equal access to services. Internationally, Jane has won numerous grants for tutoring and fitness programs for youth in the US Virgin Islands.

Director of Education and Learning Specialist:

Alison Staplin, Ed.D., Temple University. Alison joined the ATAC team after serving as a founder and the Dean of Academics and Admissions for eight years at a boarding school in Philadelphia, PA. As the lead for developing academic standards, Alison responds well to challenges and works creatively to build individualized learning plans for students at all levels.

Intake Specialist:

Lillias Bever, M.F.A., University of Oregon. B.A., Vassar. Lillias provides in-depth information to new families. Lillias started with ATAC as a writing tutor in 1996, and is currently an award winning published poet and author.

Associate Tutors:

Tutors work in their specific areas of expertise with students. All tutors have prior professional experience and receive regular consultation. As a group, they have won many honors for academic excellence. Most importantly, associate tutors have the necessary interpersonal skills to make meaningful connections with students. Associate tutors reflect and embrace ATAC's commitment to promoting diversity.

TUTORING PHILOSOPHY

While it is very important to take a break at the close of the school year to rest and regain enthusiasm, the summer tutoring experience can be a relaxing yet meaningful way to add reasonable weekly structure for educational growth. Unlike summer school, summer tutoring is flexible with family schedules and planned vacations.

Without the school year pressure of constant deadlines and grades, many students find that summer tutoring is a satisfying and fun learning experience. A positive summer experience can boost confidence and serve as a catalyst for success during the upcoming school year. For many students, review can reinforce memory and help maintain recent academic gains.

Some students have specific goals that must be met over the summer in order to maintain school placement. However, many students choose summer tutoring purely for enrichment or to focus on a skill that was not developed fully during the hectic school year.
